

APA Risk Assessment

Grave of Nicolai Hanson - Cape Adare

DETAILS

Shared 2026-06-25
Created 2026-03-15 21:53:32
Owner guest

Description

Grave at Cape Adare of Norwegian biologist Nicolai Hanson, a member of the British Antarctic (Southern Cross) Expedition, 1898-1900, led by Carsten E. Borchgrevink. A large boulder marks the head of the grave with the grave itself outlined in white quartz stones. A cross and plaque are attached to the boulder.

Risk Assessment Score

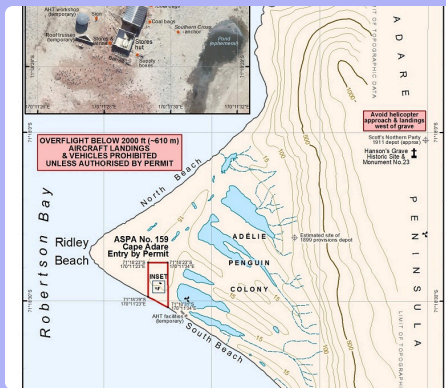

1.6

0 (Low)

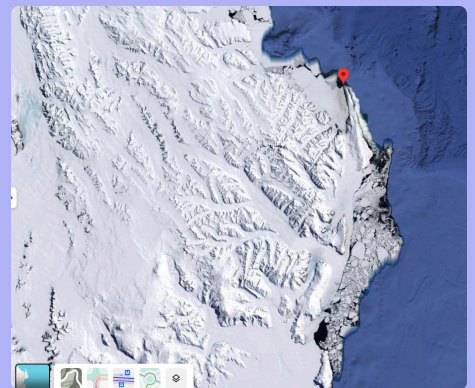

10 (Extreme)

176

M1Map 1 800 from VSG 45 Cape Adare

Screenshot from Google Earth

Risk Assessment Details

1

Is the valued part of the APA comprised of durable materials?

Yes

3

Is the APA located on the Antarctic Peninsula, South Orkney Islands, or South Shetland Islands?

No

2

Is the APA located in the Western Antarctic (i.e., west of the Transantarctic Mountains)?

Yes

4

Is the APA located at a coastal site?

No

5 Is the APA located 3m or less above sea level? No

6 Is the APA located within 100m of shoreline? No

7 Does the APA site have steep slopes (i.e., greater than 20%)? No

8 Is the APA situated on permafrost soils? Yes

9 Is the APA located north of the Antarctic Circle (66° 33' South)? No

10 Is the APA located north of 71° 33' South? Yes

11 Is the APA located north of 76° 33' South? Yes